ABOUT ME

Through my experience in the news industry, I've become proficient in linear production, digital production and have worked on special projects with investigative, political and consumer focuses. These positions have made my journalistic judgment grow stronger. I have a solid foundation in covering news topics that impact everyday people, and I deliver content that is thorough, relevant and trustworthy. When it comes to my workflow, I always ensure that the final product is something that looks sharp and is transparent, in the sense that news consumers are clearly shown where the information came from – or in other words – they can leave confident they understand and can explain what they consumed.
